

2 Acadiensis

Contributors/Contributeurs

L.F.S. Upton is a member of the History Department of the University of British Columbia and an authority on the Loyalists and on British North American history. His published works include The Loyal Whig: William Smith of New York and Quebec.

Professor of Political Science at Dalhousie University, J.M. Beck has published many books and articles dealing with the political history of the Maritimes and of Canada, including The Government of Nova Scotia, Joseph Howe: Voice of Nova Scotia, Pendulum of Power: Canada's Federal Elections and The Evolution of Municipal Government in Nova Scotia 1749-1973.

Don Macgillivray is a graduate of St. Francis Xavier University and the University of New Brunswick and is currently a Ph. D. candidate at Queen's University.

A member of the Department of History at the University of Waterloo, Kenneth McLaughlin is a Co-Editor of Ontario History. His article is from his forthcoming Ph. D. thesis for the University of Toronto.

Thomas B. Vincent teaches in the Department of English at the Royal Military College at Kingston and is an authority on 19th-century pamphlet literature. He has previously published material in the Dalhousie Review.

Bill Godfrey is a graduate of the University of Waterloo and is presently completing his Ph. D. requirements at Queen's University. He teaches in the History Department of Mount Allison University.

A member of the Political Economy Department at the University of Toronto, Ian M. Drummond has published numerous books and articles on economic history and economic systems, including The Canadian Economy: Structure and Development and British Economic Policy and the Empire, 1919-1939.

John English has recently completed his Ph. D. for Harvard University and is a member of the History Department of the University of Waterloo.

A graduate of U.N.B., U. of T. and Cornell University, Malcolm Ross is a member of the English Department of Dalhousie University. A fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, he has published many works on English and Canadian literature and has edited the Queen's Quarterly and the New Canadian Library series.

Graeme Wynn recently completed his Ph. D. in Geography for the University of Toronto and has joined the Department of Geography of the University of Canterbury in New Zealand.

Educated at U.N.B. and at Edinburgh University, Fred Cogswell has published numerous books and articles on Canadian literature. For 15 years he was editor of The Fiddlehead.