

2 Acadiensis

Contributors/Contributeurs

David Alexander is an economic historian in the Department of History at Memorial University of Newfoundland and a member of the Maritime History Group. His publications include Retailing in England During the Industrial Revolution and A Computer Index to the 'Agreement on Account of Crew.'

A native New Englander and a graduate of Amherst College and Syracuse University, James P. Allen is a member of the Geography Department at the California State University at Northridge.

A member of the Department of History of Carleton University, Namoi Griffiths has published The Acadian Deportation: Deliberate Perfidy or Cruel Necessity? and The Acadians: Creation of a People.

Geoffrey Bilson is a member of the Department of History at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon and is a graduate of the University of Wales and of Stanford.

A graduate of Waterloo and Queen's Universities, W. G. Godfrey is a member of the History Department at Mount Allison University. He is a former contributor to Acadiensis.

A graduate of Kings, UNB and Dalhousie, John Leefe is the author of several articles on Nova Scotia history. He is a member of the Social Studies Department of the Liverpool Regional High School.

L. F. S. Upton is a member of the History Department of the University of British Columbia and a student of the Loyalists and of British North American history. His published works include The Loyal Whig: William Smith of New York and Quebec.

Educated at Oxford and the University of California at Berkeley, Wallace Brown is a member of the History Department at U.N.B. Among his publications are The King's Friends and The Good Americans.

David J. Bercuson is a member of the History Department at the University of Calgary and a student of labor and western Canadian regional history. His most recent publication is Confrontation at Winnipeg: Labour, Industrial Relations and the General Strike.

A graduate of the University of British Columbia, Patricia E. Roy teaches Western Canadian history at the University of Victoria. She has published several articles dealing with aspects of the social and economic history of British Columbia.