

2 Acadiensis

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

Bill Acheson is a member of the History Department at the University of New Brunswick and is currently working on a history of Saint John in the mid-nineteenth-century.

Colin Howell teaches history and Canadian studies at St. Mary's University.

A member of the Department of Geography at Mount Allison University, Larry McCann is the author of a forthcoming book on Canadian Resource Towns: A Geographical Perspective.

A frequent contributor to Acadiensis, Graeme Wynn is a member of the Geography Department at the University of British Columbia.

Stephen F. Spencer has taught at the universities of Alberta, Guelph, Windsor and Winnipeg and his major field of interest is Canadian urban history.

John Reid has taught at the University of New Brunswick at Saint John, St. Thomas University and Mount Allison University and is currently engaged in writing a history of Mount Allison.

Formerly editor of the Southern Folklore Quarterly at the University of Florida, Richard S. Tallman received his PhD in Folklore from Memorial University and is now assistant professor of folklore and folklore archivist at Arkansas College.

Andy Seaman teaches Canadian Literature at St. Mary's University.

Hans K. Larsen is a member of the Economics Department at the University of New Brunswick.