

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

For many years a member of the Department of History at the University of British Columbia, L.F.S. Upton published several books and numerous articles on Canadian history. He was a frequent contributor to this journal. His recent death was an unexpected and severe blow to all who admired Les both as a scholar and as a warm and sympathetic human being.

Margaret Conrad recently completed her PhD at the University of Toronto and teaches at Acadia University. She is the editor of Atlantis and is currently preparing for publication a biography of George Nowlan.

Titulaire d'un doctorat en histoire de l'Université d'Ottawa, Pierre Trépanier enseigne à l'Université de Moncton depuis 1976. Il est l'auteur de Siméon Le Sage, Un haut fonctionnaire québécois face aux défis de son temps (1867-1909) (Montréal, 1979). Lise Trépanier, MA (Ottawa), se consacre à la recherche en histoire. Ils préparent de concert un livre sur l'historien Rameau de Saint-Père.

Nolan Reilly is enrolled in the PhD programme at Dalhousie University and teaches at the University of Winnipeg.

Brian Cuthbertson is the Public Records Archivist at the Public Archives of Nova Scotia.

A frequent contributor to Acadiensis, Jack Bumsted is currently a member of the Department of History at Simon Fraser University but in the fall will take up an appointment at the University of Manitoba where he will be responsible for editing the Selkirk Papers.

T.W. Acheson is well known for his studies in Canadian economic history and teaches at the University of New Brunswick.

One of Canada's most distinguished and controversial historians, Michel Brunet is a member of the history department of the Université de Montréal.

George Rawlyk has published many books and articles on the history of Atlantic Canada and teaches at Queen's University.

Bill Spray is a specialist in New Brunswick history and a member of the history department at St. Thomas University.