

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

JAMES K. HILLER is a professor of history at Memorial University of Newfoundland and has written extensively on the history of Newfoundland in the late 19th and 20th centuries. JENNIFER HUBBARD received her B.Sc. from the University of New Brunswick and her M.A. in the history of science from the Institute for the History and Philosophy of Science and Technology at the University of Toronto, where she is currently working on her Ph.D. CAROLE W. TROXLER completed her Ph.D. at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and teaches history at Elon College in North Carolina. PATRICIA A. THORNTON is an Associate Professor of Geography at Concordia University. Co-editor of Gaslights, Epidemics and Vagabond Cows: Charlottetown in the Victorian Era, DOUGLAS O. BALDWIN teaches history at Acadia University. A member of the faculty of education at the University of British Columbia, J. DONALD WILSON has published extensively in the field of Canadian educational history. COLIN READ is a professor in the history department at Huron College, University of Western Ontario and President of the Ontario Historical Society; he is the author of The Rising in Western Upper Canada: The Duncombe Rebellion. GORDON HAK received his Ph.D. from Simon Fraser University and is currently teaching history at Malaspino College in Nanaimo, British Columbia. ROSEMARY OMMER is a member of the history department at Memorial University of Newfoundland and a frequent contributor to this journal. A freelance writer and editor and an honorary research associate in the department of English at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, LAUREL BOONE is the editor of The Collected Letters of Sir Charles G.D. Roberts. Recently retired from the department of history at Dalhousie University, PETER B. WAITE is one of Canada's leading historians; his most recent book is Lord of Grey Point: Larry MacKenzie of UBC. MELVA J. DWYER is librarian emeritus at the University of British Columbia.