

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

MARGARET CONRAD is Professor of History at Acadia University. She is the author of George Nowlan: Maritime Conservative in National Politics (University of Toronto Press, 1986) and editor of They Planted Well: New England Planters in Maritime Canada (Acadiensis Press, 1988) and Making Adjustments: Change and Continuity in Planter Nova Scotia, 1759-1800 (Acadiensis Press, 1991). JAMES D. ALSOP teaches history at McMaster University. A previous contributor to this journal, he is completing a manuscript on British espionage, political intrigue and propaganda in the early 18th century. MARILYN GERRIETS is a member of the Department of Economics at St. Francis Xavier University. Another of her studies on early industrialization in Nova Scotia is forthcoming shortly in Business History. P.D. CLARKE received his Ph.D. from Laval University and has published in the Journal of Canadian Studies. He is currently employed in Shippagan by Technomar Canada, a Canadian university research and development network. SCOTT W. SEE teaches history at the University of Vermont. His work on social violence in 19th century New Brunswick has previously appeared in Acadiensis and the Canadian Historical Review. KRIS E. INWOOD is a member of the Department of Economics at the University of Guelph. He is the author of numerous studies in Canadian economic history, including contributions to Canadian Papers in Business and Economic History (1989) and Explorations in Economic History (1991). JEFF A. WEBB is a doctoral candidate in history at the University of New Brunswick, where he is working on a history of radio broadcasting in the Maritimes and Newfoundland. He holds an M.A. from Memorial University and has previously published in Newfoundland Studies. DAVID GAGAN is Professor of History at McMaster University. He is well-known for his book Hopeful Travellers: Families, Land and Social Change in Mid-Victorian Peel County, Canada West (University of Toronto Press, 1980) and is currently doing research in the social history of medicine. MARGARET McCALLUM is a lawyer and historian who teaches in the Faculty of Law at the University of New Brunswick. She has written a social history of Ganong Brothers and has published articles in Labour/Le Travail and the Canadian Historical Review. PAUL PHILLIPS is Professor of Economics at the University of Manitoba. He is the author of Regional Disparities (1982) and other studies, including "Easternizing Manitoba: The Changing Face of the New West" in the London Journal of Canadian Studies.