

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

T.W. ACHESON is the chair of the Department of History at the University of New Brunswick; a former president of the Canadian Historical Association, he is the author of influential studies in regional history, including Saint John: The Making of a Colonial Urban Community (Toronto, 1985). LAURIE C.C. STANLEY-BLACKWELL teaches history at St. Francis Xavier University; she has published The Well-Watered Garden: The Presbyterian Church in Cape Breton, 1798-1860 (Sydney, 1983). JERRY N. PITTMAN is a graduate of Carleton University and the University of New Brunswick; he is currently preparing a doctoral thesis on the history of science and religion in the 19th century. SUZANNE MORTON teaches history at McGill University; her earlier work has appeared in Acadiensis and Labour/Le Travail and she is currently co-editing a book for Acadiensis Press on the history of women in the Maritimes. JUDITH FINGARD is Dean of Graduate Studies at Dalhousie University; since the appearance of her last article in Acadiensis she has published Jack in Port: Sailortowns of Eastern Canada (Toronto, 1982) and The Dark Side of Life in Victorian Halifax (Porter's Lake, N.S., 1989); she also contributed the chapter on the 1880s to E.R. Forbes and D.A. Muise, eds., The Atlantic Provinces in Confederation (Toronto/Fredericton, 1993). IAN McKAY teaches history at Queen's University; he has recently published, with Scott Milsom, an anthology entitled Toward a New Maritimes: A Selection from Ten Years of New Maritimes (Charlottetown, 1992); he contributed the chapter on the 1910s to The Atlantic Provinces in Confederation. PHILLIP J. WOOD is a former member of the political science department at St. Francis Xavier University and now teaches at Queen's University; he is the author of Southern Capitalism: The Political Economy of North Carolina, 1880-1980 (Durham, N.C., 1986). STEVEN MAYNARD is completing a doctoral thesis at Queen's University, where he teaches working-class and social history; his earlier work has appeared in Labour/Le Travail and New Maritimes. BLAIR NEATBY is Professor of History, Carleton University; he is the author of classic studies in Canadian political history, including The Politics of Chaos: Canada in the 1930s (Toronto, 1972). JOHN EDWARD BELLIVEAU is a former national journalist and foreign correspondent for the Toronto Star and a political advisor to three Maritime premiers; he is the author of several books of popular history, including Little Louis and the Giant K.C. (Hantsport, 1980) and The Monctonians, 2 volumes (Hantsport, 1981, 1982). The distinguished political scientist, J. MURRAY BECK, is professor emeritus, Dalhousie University; his most recent books include the two-volume biography, Joseph Howe (Montreal/Kingston, 1981, 1982), and the two-volume study, The Politics of Nova Scotia (Tantallon, N.S., 1985). DONALD A. WRIGHT completed an M.A. in Canadian history at McGill University; he is a contributor to The McCord Family: A Passionate Vision (Montreal/Kingston, 1992) and has also written for The Anti-Poverty News (Fredericton).