

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

PATRICIA THORNTON is a member of the Department of Geography at Concordia University, where she continues her research in the population dynamics of the Atlantic Region. She completed her PhD thesis for the University of Aberdeen and some of her earlier work has appeared in John Mannion's collection, The Peopling of Newfoundland: Essays in Historical Geography (1977). A frequent contributor to Acadiensis, IAN ROSS ROBERTSON teaches history at Scarborough College, University of Toronto. His work on Prince Edward Island has also appeared in L.M. Cullen and T.C. Smout, Comparative Aspects of Scottish and Irish Economic and Social History, 1600-1900 (1977). GRAEME WYNN is the author of Timber Colony: A Historical Geography of Early Nineteenth Century New Brunswick (1981). He has published frequently in Acadiensis and teaches at the University of British Columbia. An earlier version of his article was presented at the Atlantic Workshop in Caraquet in 1983. PAUL AXELROD is a member of the Division of Social Science at York University and the author of Scholars and Dollars: Politics, Economics, and the Universities of Ontario, 1945-1980 (1982). His work on higher education has also appeared in Michael Cross and G.S. Kealey, Modern Canada, 1930-1980s (1984). CARL A. BRASSEAU is assistant director of the Center for Louisiana Studies at the University of Southwestern Louisiana. He received his doctorat from the Université de Paris and has published six books and numerous articles on Louisiana history. RONALD LABELLE est responsable de la section folklore, Centre d'Etudes acadiennes, Université de Moncton. Il a publié nombreuses études en histoire orale et culture populaire, y compris deux ouvrages édités, l'Inventaire des sources en folklore acadien (1984) et En r'montant la tradition — Hommage au père Anselme Chiasson (1982). Professor of History at the University of Toronto, W.H. NELSON is the author of The American Tory (1961) and editor of Theory and Practice in American Politics (1964). MICHAEL CLOW lectures in sociology and Atlantic Studies at Saint Mary's University, where he is also a research fellow at the Gorsebrook Institute. He has published in Studies in Political Economy and other journals. A former contributor to Acadiensis, TERRENCE MURPHY is a member of the Department of Religious Studies at the Memorial University of Newfoundland. LOUIS-GEORGES HARVEY teaches history at Bishop's University and has also taught at the University of Ottawa and the University of New Brunswick. One of his studies on popular culture in French Canada appears this year in Historical Methods.