

2 Acadiensis

Contributors/Collaborateurs

Ernie Forbes is a member of the History Department at the University of New Brunswick and the author of a book on The Maritime Rights Movement, soon to be published by McGill-Queen's University Press.

A frequent contributor to Acadiensis, Judith Fingard teaches in the Department of History at Dalhousie University.

David Alexander is a member of the History Department of the Memorial University of Newfoundland and part of the Maritime History Group there.

Ian MacPherson has published extensively on the co-operative movement and teaches history at the University of Victoria.

A member of the History Department of St. Thomas University, Bill Spray is currently involved in examining immigration into the Maritimes in the nineteenth century.

A graduate of the University of Toronto, David Sutherland teaches history at Dalhousie University.

Colin Howell is a member of the History Department of Saint Mary's University and Director of their Atlantic Canada Studies programme.

D. N. Sprague is an Assistant Professor of History at the University of Manitoba and co-author of The Structure of Canadian History, forthcoming from Prentice-Hall.

R. T. Clippingdale teaches history at Carleton University and is an authority on Canadian politics.

Alvin C. Gluek, Jr. has taught at Dalhousie University and the University of Toronto, but has retired to New Hampshire.

Gerry Tulchinsky is a member of the History Department at Queen's University and is author of The River Barons.