

PEACE AND WAR

“They hate and detest war as a thing manifestly brutal, and yet practised by man more constantly than by any kind of beast. Contrary to almost all other peoples they consider nothing so inglorious as the glory won in war. Nevertheless both men and women of Utopia regularly practise military exercises on certain days, so that they will be prepared when the need arises. They go to war cautiously and reluctantly, only to protect their own territory or that of their friends if an enemy has invaded it, or to free some wretched people from tyrannous oppression and servitude.”

Thomas More, Utopia

NOW AVAILABLE

LOW INTENSITY CONFLICT AND THE INTEGRITY OF THE SOVIET BLOC

The Report of a Workshop, held in March 1981, printed and bound in the style of this Journal, is available now from the same address, price $5 or £2, postage paid.

The report contains an abstract, a preliminary section dealing with assumptions and factors, and four sections concerned respectively with Methods of Control in the Soviet Bloc, Vulnerabilities, Scenarios Desired by the West for about the Year 2000, and Strategic Options for reaching them. Findings are summarized and there is an Annex on the mechanics of internal control.

Simply write "Workshop Report" on the top of your cheque.
