

CONTRIBUTORS

Tunde Adeniran is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Political Science at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria. He is co-editor of International Violence (1981) and has written many articles on issues relating to international peace and security. Dr. Adeniran is currently involved in a research project on crisis management and conflict resolution.

Aurthur Aughey is Lecturer in Politics at Ulster Polytechnic, Belfast, Northern Ireland. He is part of a project team studying Northern Ireland under Direct Rule and is currently writing a book on Northern Ireland in the European Economic Community. He has also written widely on Conservative Party politics.

Richard A. Gabriel is Professor of Politics at Saint Anselm College, Manchester, New Hampshire. A Major in the US Army Reserve, he served in Vietnam and later on the staff of the Supreme Allied Commander of NATO. Dr. Gabriel also graduated from the Army Advanced Intelligence School and fills an intelligence position at the Pentagon. He is co-author of Crisis in Command (1978) and has recently published studies of military ethics, the Soviet military, and the US Army.

Brian Grosman, QC, partner in Greenglass and Grosman, Toronto, was formerly Professor of Law at the University of Saskatchewan and founding chairman of the Saskatchewan Law Reform Commission. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, Osgoode Hall Law School and McGill University. His published works include The Prosecutor: An Inquiry into the Exercise of Discretion; Police Command: Decisions and Discretion; and New Directions in Sentencing, as well as many articles.

Colin McIlheney is Research Officer in the Education Development Centre at Ulster Polytechnic and was formerly a Thouron Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania. He has acted as analyst for Ulster Television in programmes covering the role of the American administration in relation to the Northern Ireland situation. He has published many articles on aspects of crime and economic policy in Northern Ireland.

Calvin A. Woodward is Professor of Political Science at the University of New Brunswick. In 1979-80 he was University Fellow at Rhodes University, South Africa. Dr. Woodward has written extensively on the politics of British Commonwealth nations and South Africa.