

CONTRIBUTORS

Cynthia A. Cannizzo is affiliated with the Strategic Studies Program at the University of Calgary. Prior to this appointment, she was a research Fellow at the Centre for the Study of Arms Control and International Security at the University of Lancaster and the Mershon Center at the Ohio State University. She has written on arms transfers (editor, The Gun Merchants, Pergamon, 1980), arms control and NATO. Her current research deals with leadership within NATO.

Joseph J. Collins is a Major in the U.S. Army and an assistant professor at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, New York. Portions of his paper reflect research or textual material taken from the author's "The Soviet Invasion of Afghanistan," Naval War College Review (November 1980) and subsequent revisions.

Ernest Evans is Assistant Professor in the Politics Department of Catholic University in Washington, D.C. Author of Calling a Truce to Terror: The American Response to International Terrorism (1979), he is currently finishing a book on the U.S. military and unconventional war. This is his third article for Conflict Quarterly.

Robin N. Montgomery is Director of the Center for Regional Studies at Southwestern Oklahoma State University, Weatherford, Oklahoma. His publications on national security affairs include a book on Cuba and articles in Air University Review, National Defense and Parameters. He also writes a bi-weekly column on world affairs for his local newspaper.

Maurice Tugwell is the Director of the Centre for Conflict Studies.