

CONTRIBUTORS

Dr. Martin Blumenson served as an official historian with the U. S. Army during and after the Second World War. He is the author or editor of more than a dozen books in the field of military history, among them The Patton Papers and, most recently, a biography of General Mark Clark. He lectures widely to military and academic audiences.

Glenn P. Hastedt is Assistant Professor of Political Science at James Madison University in Virginia. He received a Ph. D. from Indiana University, and has published widely on the study of American intelligence matters.

Peter Hoffman is Professor of History at McGill University and is author of several works on the German resistance and Hitler's security.

Dr. Joseph Nevo is a lecturer at the Department of Middle Eastern History, University of Haifa. In 1981/2 he was a visiting Associate Professor at Carleton University, Ottawa. He has published extensively on the modern history of Jordan, Saudi Arabia and the Arab-Jewish conflict in Palestine before 1948. His book The Palestinian Arab National Movement 1939-1945 is forthcoming.

Sam C. Sarkesian is a retired Lieutenant Colonel (U.S. Army) who received his Ph.D. from Columbia University. As author of a number of articles and books, including U.S. Policy and Low-Intensity Conflict: Potentials for Military Struggles in the 1980s (1981), his interests range from American politics and national security to military professionalism. Currently, Dr. Sarkesian is a Professor in the Department of Political Science, Loyola University, Chicago.

G. Davidson-Smith is a doctoral candidate in political science at the University of Aberdeen. He is retired from the Canadian Forces in the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and has written on the use of the military in internal security.