

CONTRIBUTORS

Robert B. Ash was born in Colombia, South America, and lived there for seventeen years. A student of international affairs, he is currently reading for an M. Litt. degree in strategic studies at the University of Aberdeen. His most recent publication was an article in RUSI which dealt with the rural struggle in Latin America.

Francis A. Coghlan is a Professor of History at the University of New Brunswick and is a member of the Editorial Advisory Board of Conflict Quarterly. His area of expertise encompasses American diplomatic history with an especial interest in Central America.

Richard Dale is Associate Professor of Political Science at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois. A graduate of Princeton University, Dr. Dale has taught and published widely on the politics of Southern Africa. In the 1984-85 academic year he was a visiting professor in the School of International Studies at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Gholam H. Razi is with the Department of Political Science at the University of Houston, Houston, Texas.

G. Davidson Smith is a doctoral candidate in international relations at the University of Aberdeen, where he is studying the military response to internal security threats. He retired from the Canadian Armed Forces in the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

J.A. Emerson Vermaat is a Dutch writer and television editor who specializes in international affairs and international law. In 1983 he visited the Afghan/Pakistani border area and has since published a series of articles on Soviet war crimes in Afghanistan. He is currently preparing a book which examines the role of the World Council of Churches in international affairs, to be published by the Ethics and Public Policy Center, Washington, D.C.