

CONTRIBUTORS

Roman M. Boreyko [pseud.] is a Polish citizen.

Richard Dale is Associate Professor of Political Science at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois. He is a specialist in African politics and has published extensively in that field.

Bruce Hoffman is a staff member in the Security and Subnational Conflict Research Program at the Rand Corporation, where he studies terrorist organizations and issues relating to low-intensity conflict. He received his doctorate from St. Antony's College, Oxford, and is author of The Failure of Britain's Military Strategy Within Palestine, 1939-1947 (1984). This is his second article in Conflict Quarterly.

Efraim Karsh is a lecturer in International Relations at Tel Aviv University and is a research associate of the Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies. He has just completed a year as a research associate at the International Institute for Strategic Studies, where he prepared the review jointly with Miss Rautsi.

John Mackinlay is a research student at King's College, London. He served on the commander's staff in the Multinational Force and Observers in the Sinai in 1982-83. He visited the MNF in Beirut in 1983, where he interviewed members of each contingent, the press corps and the Lebanese government. He recently completed his dissertation on peacekeeping while at Churchill College, Cambridge.

Inari Rautsi is a doctoral student in the Department of Political Science, University of Helsinki.

André YaDeau is a doctoral candidate in politics and international relations at the University of Aberdeen, where he has completed his dissertation on the literature of 'people's war', with particular reference to Algeria and Cuba.