

CONTRIBUTORS

Michael J. Engelhart is Professor of Political Science at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa.

Michael M. Gunter is Professor of Political Science at Tennessee Technological University. He has published extensively on Armenian terrorism against Turkey.

Roger Hamburg is Professor of Political Science at Indiana University, South Bend, Indiana. A graduate of the Universities of Michigan and Chicago, he has taught at the University of Wisconsin and Marquette University, as well as holding a fellowship at the Harvard Center for International Affairs. He teaches and publishes in the field of Soviet foreign policy.

Frederic S. Pearson is Professor of Political Science, and Fellow of the Center for International Studies, University of Missouri-St. Louis. He received his PhD from the University of Michigan and is author or co-author of many articles on arms sales policies, intervention and warfare, as well as a text on international relations. His co-authors of this article, Robert A. Baumann and Gordon N. Bardos are, respectively, Assistant Director and Research Intern at the Center for International Studies.

Stephen Sloan is Professor of Political Science at the University of Oklahoma and is a member of the Editorial Advisory Board of Conflict Quarterly.

W. Andrew Terrill is an Adjunct Professor of Diplomacy and World Affairs at Occidental College, Los Angeles, and also teaches political science at California State Polytechnic University. He also serves as a consultant for Systems Research and Development Corporation.