

CONTRIBUTORS

Nicholas O. Berry is Chairman of the Political Science Department at Ursinus College in Pennsylvania. His article "Theories on the Efficacy of Terrorism" appeared in the Winter 1987 issue of Conflict Quarterly.

Helena Cobban is Senior MacArthur Fellow in International Peace and Security Studies, and Guest Scholar at the Brookings Institution, Washington. A leading scholar in contemporary Middle East Studies, she is author of The Palestinian Liberation Organization: People, Power, Politics (1984).

Stuart Farson is a doctoral candidate in political science at the University of Toronto, where he is researching the security intelligence function in comparative liberal democracies. He has published, taught and presented papers in this field, and recently served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Association for Security and Intelligence Studies.

Joseph F. Ryan graduated from Carleton University, Ottawa, in June 1988 with Highest Honours in History and Political Science and the University Medal in Interfaculty Studies. He worked in England as a researcher at the Royal United Services Institute for Defence Studies. He is a specialist in national security and intelligence matters.

Ross Weber is a Canadian, who received his PhD in History from the University of London. He is currently with the Department of History at the University of Melbourne, Australia, where he is also pursuing research work in criminology.