

CONTRIBUTORS

Hisham H. Ahmed is Assistant Professor of Political Science at the University of North Dakota. His areas of interest include foreign policy analysis, Middle East politics and the political history of national-ethnic movements. He has published widely on topics pertaining to his areas of interest and is the author of a forthcoming book on American Foreign Policy and Palestinian Self-Determination Before 1948.

Nicholas O. Berry is Professor and Chairperson of the Department of Politics at Ursinus College, Pennsylvania. His two current books are (with Michael Roskin) IR: An Introduction to International Relations (1990), and Foreign Policy and the Press (1990).

Michael B. Bishku is Associate Professor of History at the University of Nebraska at Kearney. He has published numerous articles on British, American and Turkish foreign policy regarding the Middle East. He is a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Third World Studies and is a member of the executive board of the Association of Third World Studies.

Kenneth D. Bush is a doctoral student in the Government Department of Cornell University. He received his MA in International Affairs from the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs, Carleton University. He is presently writing his dissertation on the variable linkages between state, society, identity and conflict.

Martha Cottam is Associate Professor of Political Science at Washington State University. She is co-author of The Changing Agenda: World Politics since 1945 (1988).

Gideon Doron teaches Political Science at Tel Aviv University. He is a member of the editorial board of the International Journal of Intelligence and Counter-intelligence. He has written extensively on Israeli intelligence matters.

Michael J. Engelhardt is Professor of Political Science at Luther College, Iowa. He previously published an article entitled "America Can Win, Sometimes: US Success and Failure in Small Wars," in the Winter 1989 issue of Conflict Quarterly.

Stuart Farson teaches political science at Simon Fraser University. In 1989-90 he served as Director of Research for the Special Committee of the House of Commons on the Review of the CSIS Act and Security Offences Act. He is author of several articles on security, intelligence and policing matters and co-editor of Intelligence in a Changing World: New Perspectives for the 1990s (1991).

Victor Fic is Tokyo correspondent for The Asian Defense Journal. He completed an MA at the Institute of International Affairs at York University. He has written extensively on Asian security and defense matters.

Michael M. Gunter is Professor of Political Science at Tennessee Technological University. He has published extensively on Armenian terrorism, including "Pursuing the Just Cause of Their People": A Study of Contemporary Armenian Terrorism (1986). His latest book is The Kurds in Turkey: A Political Dilemma (1990).

Michael Herman is an Associate Member of Nuffield College, Oxford. He was a British civil servant for 35 years and is a graduate of the British Joint Services Staff College. He is at present completing a book on intelligence for the Royal Institute of International Affairs, Chatham House.

Douglas V. Johnson, II is a Strategic Research Analyst at the Strategic Studies Institute, U.S. Army War College, Carlisle. He taught history at the U.S. Military Academy and was co-founder of the U.S. Army School of Advanced Military Studies, Fort Leavenworth. He is co-author of several SSI studies including Iraqi Power and U.S. Security in the Middle East and Lessons Learned: the Iran-Iraq War.

Stewart S. Johnson is lecturer at the University of California, Los Angeles. His experience in the Philippines precedes Marcos' martial law regime. Having authored several papers and reviews, he is currently completing two major projects on Philippine politics and foreign policy.

Thomas R. Mockaitis is a professor in the Department of History at DePaul University. He is also Book Review Editor for Small Wars and Insurgencies. He is a specialist in low-intensity conflict and among his publications is British Counterinsurgency, 1919-60 (1990).

Miron Rezun is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of New Brunswick. He is a specialist in Soviet and Middle Eastern politics. His most recent publications include Iran at the Crossroads: Global Relations in a Turbulent Decade (1990) and Intrigue and War in Southwest Asia: the Struggle for Supremacy from Central Asia to Iraq (1992).

James J. Wirtz is an Assistant Professor in the Department of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey. He received his PhD from Columbia University and is the author of The Tet Offensive: Intelligence Failure in War (1991).

The Canadian Association for Security and Intelligence
Studies

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Canadian Association for Security and Intelligence Studies, in conjunction with the Intelligence Studies Section of the International Studies Association and the Centre for Conflict Studies at the University of New Brunswick, is soliciting proposals for conference papers on the theme:

INTELLIGENCE ANALYSIS AND ASSESSMENT: THE PRODUCER-POLICY-MAKER RELATIONSHIP
IN A CHANGING WORLD

The Conference will be held in Fall 1993, date and location to be announced.

Proposals for Papers should be sent to either:

Dr. David Charters
Centre for Conflict Studies
University of New Brunswick
Fredericton, N.B. Canada E3B 5A3
Fax: 506-453-4599

or

Professor Jefferson Adams
Department of History
Sarah Lawrence College
Bronxville, N.Y. 10708
Fax no: 914-395-2666