

CONTRIBUTORS

Earl Conteh-Morgan is Assistant Professor of International Studies at the University of South Florida. He has published articles on conflict and conflict transformation in developing countries and is author of American Foreign Aid and Global Power Projection: The Geopolitics of Resource Allocation (1990). His forthcoming book is titled Japan and the United States: Global Dimensions of Economic Power.

Randall W. Heather is a doctoral candidate at St. Edmunds College, Cambridge, writing a dissertation on British counterinsurgency in the Mau Mau campaign. The former head of the International Assessment Office of the Bank of Montreal, he is currently Senior Analyst with the Strategic Monitoring Service, and commentator on terrorism for the London desk of ABC News.

Robert D'A. Henderson is an international affairs consulting analyst to the Federal Government of Canada. Previously, he taught international relations and comparative politics at universities in Canada, Britain, Nigeria, and Lesotho. He has published widely on international relations and African affairs.

Thomas R. Mockaitis is professor in the Department of History at DePaul University. He is Book Review Editor for Small Wars and Insurgencies. He is a specialist in low-intensity conflict and among his publications is British Counterinsurgency, 1919-60 (1990).

Benedict Stavis is Associate Professor of Political Science at Temple University. His book China's Political Reforms: An Interim Report (1988) describes the political conflict over democratization in China that broke out in 1986, and in many ways set the stage for the more intense struggle of 1989.

