

CONTRIBUTORS

Thomas L. Cabbage II is a lawyer at the Low Centre in Bartlesville, Oklahoma. He served in the Military Intelligence Branch of the US Army from 1965 to 1971, and was an Intelligence Collection Officer in Vietnam in 1967-68. He is currently working on two books in the field of intelligence studies during the Second World War.

Cecil B. Currey is a professor of military history at the University of South Florida. He is author of Self-Destruction: the Disintegration and Decay of the United States Army During the Vietnam Era (1981), and Edward Lansdale: the Unquiet American (1989).

Noemi Gal-Or is a professor in the Department of History at the University of British Columbia. She is author of International Cooperation to Suppress Terrorism (1985), and recently edited Tolerating Terrorism in the West: an International Survey (1991).

William A. Hazleton is professor of political science at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. His previous publications have focused on human rights and terrorism. He is currently collaborating with Arthur Aughey on a study of the Ulster Unionist Party since 1972.

Thomas G. Mitchell received his PhD in International Relations from the University of Southern California in 1990, and is currently completing an MBA at the Thunderbird graduate business school. He published an article on the internal settlement as a counterinsurgency strategy in the Winter 1992 issue of Conflict Quarterly, and a third article on Vietnam as an internal settlement will appear in Spring 1994.

