

CONTRIBUTORS

Elizabeth E. Anderson is a doctoral candidate in the Government Department at Georgetown University. She specializes in intelligence studies and is writing a dissertation on covert action.

Stephen Blank is Associate Professor of Soviet Studies with the Strategic Studies Institute at the US Army War College. Among his many publications are Stalin's Commissariat of Nationalities, 1917-24: The Sorcerer as Apprentice (1993) and his forthcoming The Bears Look East: Russian Policy in Asia After Communism.

Michael M. Gunter is a professor of political science at Tennessee Technological University. He is author of The Kurds in Turkey: A Political Dilemma (1990) and The Kurds of Iraq: Tragedy and Hope (1992).

Anthony Sivers was Senior Research Officer at the Council for Arms Control in London, which published his monograph Conventional Arm Control (1989). His PhD thesis in the Department of War Studies, King's College, University of London, assessed "Western Deterrence and the Just War Principles" (1984).

Peter J. Woolley is an associate professor of political science at Fairleigh Dickinson University, and he specializes in international security affairs. His previous contributions to Conflict Quarterly include "Geography and the Limits of US Military Intervention," (Fall 1991).

