

Contributors

Collaborateurs

SUZANNE BEAUVAIS travaille comme adjointe aux conservateurs au Musée des sciences et de la technologie du Canada et prépare une maîtrise en histoire à l'Université d'Ottawa.

JENNIFER CARTER is a doctoral candidate in the School of Architecture at McGill University in Montreal. Her research considers ephemeral architecture and Jesuit rhetoric in royal entries and civic pageantry in seventeenth-century France. She is an educator and guide at the Canadian Centre for Architecture.

JIM DROBNICK is an independent curator and critic living in Montreal. He teaches in the Graduate Program in Fine Arts at Concordia University and is assistant editor at Parachute.

JENNIFER FISHER is an independent curator and critic living in Montreal. She teaches in the Department of Communications and Art History at McGill University and the Graduate Program in Fine Arts at Concordia University.

GEORGES GAUTHIER-LAROUCHE habite Beauport, au Québec.

NADIA KAJJOU détient un doctorat en sciences du langage de l'Université de Limoges, en France. Elle termine un stage de post-doctorat au Centre interuniversitaire d'études sur les lettres, les arts et les traditions (CÉLAT), tout en travaillant comme chargée de cours en histoire de l'art à l'Université du Québec à Montréal.

DOUGLAS MCCALLA is a professor of History at Trent University in Peterborough, Ontario. The author of Planting the Province: The Economic History of Upper Canada, 1784-1870, he is currently at work on a larger study of the history of Canadian settlement, for which he was granted a Killam Research Fellowship, held from 1998 to 2000.

DAVID MCGEE is a visiting scholar at the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science in Berlin where he is working on the origins of modern traditions of design and invention.

LARRY MCNALLY is an archivist at the Canadian Archives Branch of the National Archives of Canada. He is responsible for the textual portion of science, engineering, medical and technical collections.

DAVID W. MONAGHAN is curator of Land Transportation at the Canada Science and Technology Museum in Ottawa.

DELPHIN A. MUISE is a professor of History at Carleton University in Ottawa.

BRIAN S. OSBORNE is a "Canadian-Canadian" who teaches historical geography at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario.

COLLEEN OVENDEN is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Art History and the Graduate Program in Communications at McGill University in Montreal. Her research examines the problematic of globalization in relation to contemporary art exhibition practice.

JOAN SEIDL is curator of History at the Vancouver Museum.

COLETTE TOUGAS is a writer and translator living in Montreal. She is managing editor of Parachute.

MICHEL WYCZYNSKI is an archivist with the Canadian Archives Branch of the National Archives of Canada. He is also the archivist and historian of the Airborne Regiment Association of Canada, honorary archivist of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion Association and honorary archivist of the Canadian Airborne Forces Museum, CFB Petawawa.