

ABORIGINAL LAW SOCIETY FOREWORD

Aboriginal Law Society of UNB

Greetings from the Aboriginal Law Society of the University of New Brunswick! We are proud to be a part of this journal, which has been compiled on unceded Wolastoqey territory. This is an exciting time to join ranks with the esteemed scholars presented here as they pursue the cutting edge of progressing Indigenous issues.

The advancement of Indigenous legal issues not only affects Indigenous cultures but also allows for healthy introspection on behalf of the rest of Canadian society. The society takes great pleasure in witnessing the advancement of research and understanding in many different areas that affect Indigenous people. The time for great change in Canada is upon us and the following articles will assist in the advancement of the legal system in relation to Indigenous people. Recommendations will be made in attempts to alleviate some of the issues facing Indigenous people today. As a society, we are proud to present a collection of scholarly articles representing the current jurisprudence in relation to Indigenous people and the future of what we can expect to see in the coming years.

We implore you, the reader, to keep your mind open and to cultivate a better understanding of today's Indigenous issues. Congratulations to all the authors featured here and, once again, we thank you for allowing us to be involved. We hope you enjoy this year's journal as much as we have enjoyed being a part of it.

Best regards,

The Aboriginal Law Society
Faculty of Law
University of New Brunswick