

POSTGRADUATE FELLOWSHIPS AWARDED U.N.B.
LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS

Four major fellowships for postgraduate study abroad, two in England, and one each in France and the United States, were awarded this year to members of the third-year class of the University of New Brunswick Faculty of Law. Robert A. Webster and Daniel M. Hurley were recipients of Lord Beaverbrook Overseas Scholarships, Joseph Daigle of a France-Acadie Scholarship, and W. Howard McConnell of an Assistantship in Philosophy and Law at Duke University.

Lord Beaverbrook Overseas Scholarships are tenable at any university in the United Kingdom. The scholarships cover one year's postgraduate study, but may be used for degree courses up to a maximum of three years. They provide travelling expenses to Britain and return, vacation travel within the United Kingdom, tuition fees and living expenses. Robert A. Webster of Westmount, P.Q., is an Arts graduate of Bishop's University. He holds a Lord Beaverbrook undergraduate scholarship in law and was awarded the Carswell law prize twice for leading the first and second year classes. Mr. Webster plans to study for the LL.M. degree at the University of London. Mr. Hurley, of Barnaby River, N. B., received his B.A. degree from St. Thomas University and later served as a lieutenant in the Korean War. He entered the University of New Brunswick Law School as a Lord Beaverbrook scholar in law. He was awarded the Butterworth prize for second highest standing in both his first and second years. Mr. Hurley also plans on registering for the LL.M. degree at London.

The France-Acadie Scholarship awarded to Joseph Daigle provides a year's tuition at the University of Paris, travelling expenses to and from France and living expenses. The scholarship is made available by the government of France and is awarded on the basis of academic achievement. It is renewable after the first year. Mr. Daigle is a graduate of St. Joseph's University with a B.A. degree. He plans to study international law.

W. Howard McConnell of Aylmer, P.Q., will undertake graduate studies at Duke University leading to a Master of Arts degree. His assistantship is in the amount of $1600.00 and is tenable in the departments of philosophy and law. Mr. McConnell received his B.A. degree from Carleton University, Ottawa. He is also a Lord Beaverbrook undergraduate scholar in law.

In addition to the four postgraduate fellowships, three undergraduate scholarships were awarded during the year. Ronald Lister, a member of the first-year class, is the first recipient of the Honourable Charles D. Richards Scholarship in Law. This scholarship, established under the will of the late Honourable C. D. Richards, former Chief Justice of New Brunswick, is to be awarded annually to a first-year student in the Faculty of Law. Two Barristers Society of New Brunswick Scholarships were awarded, one to Gérard Godin and one to Joseph Daigle.
