

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Turning conference proceedings into a bound volume is more difficult than most people realize. I am particularly indebted to Hazel Ward and Sherri Davis who entered the manuscript on disks for nothing more than the experience of doing it. Deborah Eaton had the thankless task of keeping paper moving, badgering delinquent authors and copy-editing their work. Without her constant presence (funded by a SEED grant) and efficient ways (surely a manifestation of her Planter roots) the manuscript may never have been completed. Acadia University Archivist Patricia Townsend was her usual helpful self during this project and Edith Haliburton cheerfully tolerated our many demands for “rare” books at a time when the Library was officially closed. The History Department at Acadia University, particularly its head Sam Nesdoly and his assistant Carolyn Bowlby, were supportive in ways too numerous to mention. The other members of the Planter Studies Committee — Douglas Baldwin, Gwendolyn Davies, Richard Davies, Alan MacIntosh, Barry Moody, James Snowdon and Patricia Townsend — gave me a free hand to do as I wished and spared me the trouble of endless editorial meetings.

Since books like these rarely pay for themselves, I am also grateful to those who dug even deeper into their purses to provide publication subsidies; in particular, Lois Valley-Fischer, Dean of Arts, Marshall Conley, acting Director of Graduate Studies, and President James Perkin of Acadia University. The remainder of an Occasional Conference Grant provided by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council for the Planter Conference was essential in putting us “over the top” and I am grateful to the Council for its support. Finally, I would like to thank the contributors, most of whom scrupulously met my unrealistic deadlines and graciously accepted my editorial nit-picking. It is to them, both longtime and recent Planter scholars, that the book is dedicated.
